After a general discussion in which it was reiterated that the objects of this club was to be exclusively the purification and betterment of the government of this city, it was decided to meet every second and fourth Thursday in the same hall, 277 Wyoming avenue.

Mrs. Mary E. Ferber made an earnest address which aroused general enthusiasm. She pointed out by religiously standing together much could be accomplished. Women who are taxpayers should take a special interest in this club, because they are denied the right to vote, but can help to bring about good government through this club.

John J. Hart made a stirring address. He stated that this is the best organized city of the United States labor unions, but the poorest one in political organization for good municipal government. He would join this club and work with it so long as national politics were excluded from it. This sentiment was endorsed by all present. He expressed his hope that it would not degrade the city and added that he would a Lexow to arouse the public.

A Langerfeld described how the city of New York was regenerated and its government purified by the Good Government clubs organized there a few years ago when the corrupt Tammany administration was acting as our present city councils.

Mr. Williams presented his views that usury was at the bottom of all corruption. A committee was elected to draft a constitution and general plan of organizing throughout the whole city and report at the next meeting on July 13.

[Under this heading short letters of interest will be published when accepted for publication, by the writer's name. The Tribune will not be held responsible for opinions here expressed.]

Mr. Williams Makes Answer.
Editor of The Tribune:
Sir: In your issue of today I saw a letter from J. P. Lavery who takes exception to some statements made by me to the Republican. Will you please give me a little space to acknowledge my errors and correct some wrong impressions on my part.

I have been informed that the Building Trades Council were united on the eight-hour demand and if they are not I acknowledge the fact. I was very particular, but I have seen the printed demands of the Carpenters' union, the Plasterers' union and the Sheet Metal union, and have seen statements made by me on the eight-hour day. I have since been informed that the Plumbers' union have signed an agreement on the nine-hour day for above the present wages. The Carpenters' union have had their strike already so that they would only go out to help the rest of the unions with the strike on hand.

But that will make no difference in the expense of a job if the rate per hour is not raised. I hope that the Trades Council will be satisfied with the action of the whole city and report at the next meeting on July 13.

Mr. Williams presented his views that usury was at the bottom of all corruption. A committee was elected to draft a constitution and general plan of organizing throughout the whole city and report at the next meeting on July 13.
